About SPILF

The Stanford Public Interest Law Foundation (SPILF) is dedicated to providing financial support to and creating opportunities for law students and legal professionals to engage in public interest work. SPILF’s goals are to bring legal services to groups that would otherwise lack access to adequate legal representation, strengthen the network of students and alumni involved with public interest work, provide training and support to students interested in pursuing public interest work while at Stanford Law School and after graduation, and increase the participation in and visibility of public interest initiatives at Stanford.

We have seeded many projects at the Law School, including Summer Funding, Post-Graduate Public Interest Fellowships, and the Public Interest Lawyer of the Year Awards, all of which have become institutions of the public interest community. To support students pursuing careers in the public interest, SPILF also provides bar grants to graduating 3Ls. These cash grants assist them with bar fees and study courses to ease their financial burden at the outset of their careers. All students whose starting positions involve working for underserved communities or the environment are eligible.

SPILF Initiatives

The SPILF Student Initiatives Grant Program supports student-run projects at Stanford that make a public interest impact. In 2018, SPILF received many important applications from a diverse group of applicants. The following programs were selected as recipients of SPILF Student Initiative Grants.

Al Otro Lado Legal Services in Tijuana: In winter quarter, a group of 41 students traveled to Tijuana to provide legal services to asylum seekers, in partnership with Al Otro Lado. Students conducted intake interviews with clients, researched legal issues, gave informational talks, and more. In light of the humanitarian crisis at the border and the huge number of students committed to volunteering, SPILF gave one of its largest grants ever to help finance this trip.

Camp Fire Legal Assistance: A group of 3Ls worked with California Rural Legal Assistance (CRLA) to provide disaster relief to individuals affected by the Camp Fire. Students traveled to the Central Valley in November and helped those affected by the fires complete FEMA forms.

Election Law Project: More than 60 SLS students volunteered for the Election Law Project during the 2018 Election. Some students served as election officers at local polling locations, while others served as poll monitors to ensure compliance with state and federal voter protections. Many California jurisdictions where issues such as voter harassment, language barriers, and disability access have been recently problematic are hundreds of miles away. SPILF's grant helped ensure that travel costs would not be a barrier for students to access these regions.

National Lawyers Guild: In the fall, the National Lawyers Guild partnered with the Democratic Socialists to host the Disorientation BBQ Event. This event brought together new and returning members of the social justice community at SLS and across the university. Disorientation featured a keynote speech from Professor Susan Champion about her path through law school and her work with the Three Strikes Project at SLS.

Native American Law Student Association: NALSA organizes an alternative spring break trip to the Yurok Reservation. This year, SPILF funding allowed about a dozen student volunteers to travel to Klamath and provide legal services informed by an understanding of the historical, cultural, and social context of the Yurok Tribe community. These services are especially important given the remoteness of the reservation and the lack of legal aid on the reservation.

Practical Skills to Combat Human Trafficking: This winter, a 3L teamed up with the Human Trafficking Institute to create a program designed to teach law students practical skills to combat trafficking in law firms, during clerkships, in criminal prosecution, and in criminal defense. SPILF's grant helped bring six experts in the field to Stanford to teach the training sessions.

Project Clean Slate: Project Clean Slate is a pro bono program dedicated to helping people remove eligible misdemeanor and felony convictions from their records. Volunteers help screen clients and identify potential legal remedies. Some students even represent clients in expungement hearings, which requires law students to be certified. SPILF funding covered the fees for certification, allowing volunteers to stand up for their clients in court.
SPILF Initiatives

Shaking the Foundations: In October, Shaking the Foundations, the annual progressive, public interest lawyering conference at SLS, hosted Marielena Hincapié as the keynote speaker. Ms. Hincapié is the executive director of the National Immigration Law Center, well-respected in both the immigrants’ rights field and broader social justice sectors. SPILF funding helped cover her and other panelists’ travel expenses.

Springdale Alternative Break Trip: A 3L student put together a trip to Springdale, Arkansas, home of the country’s largest population of immigrants from the Marshall Islands (where the U.S. conducted nuclear testing for 12 years). The Marshallese population faces a variety of legal challenges; a team of students spent their spring break on a trip to Springdale to help provide the direct legal services the community needs. SPILF provided funding for airfare and rental cars.

Stanford Law Students Against Gendered Violence: SLS GiVe hosts events on campus that illuminate the important role of gender in pressing legal arenas. Events discuss the intersection of sexual violence and the law, gender and the criminal justice system, and case studies such as Cyntoia Brown. SPILF funding allows SLS GiVe to increase programming and collaborations with other campus groups.

Stanford Prison Advocacy and Resources Coalition: In partnership with local jails, SPARC facilitates student-led book clubs and creative writing classes that bring together students and prisoners in spaces that encourage academic analysis, personal reflection, and creative expression. SPARC also leads community engagement programs, such as staffing the Children’s Bike Giveaway event with volunteers during the winter holidays. SPILF funding provides books and supplies for the classes and transportation for volunteers.

Upstate New York Legal Services Trip: At the end of summer, two groups of 2Ls and 3Ls traveled to Bath and Buffalo in New York, partnering with legal aid organizations in each city. The teams worked on a variety of projects, supporting clients with needs in immigration, housing, family law, bankruptcy, and more. The students also met with local attorneys and judges, learning about the legal challenges faced by the region. SPILF helped fund travel and lodging costs for the volunteers.

Water Scarcity in Central CA: Throughout the fall quarter, two 3Ls made regular trips to the Central Valley to document and raise awareness of the region’s lack of access to clean drinking water. Inspired by an environmental journalism course, the students expanded their multimedia project to pitch to an environmental journalism publication.

Watsonville, CA Legal Services: This spring, a group of students plan to travel to Watsonville, CA to provide legal services to migrant farmworkers. Farmworkers frequently lack access to the basis of a decent human life: access to clean water, human working and living condition, security in their ability to remain in their communities and seek a better life for their children. These students will get a first-hand look at the challenges face by this marginalized community while working in a clinical setting, doing legal intakes, visiting migrant farmworker camps, and potentially even working in the fields.

Workers’ Rights Pro Bono: Through the Workers’ Rights Pro Bono, about 21 students met biweekly through the winter and spring quarters to support Legal Aid at Work. At the clinic in East Palo Alto, volunteers helped local residents navigate a variety of employment law issues, ranging from workplace discrimination to worker’s compensation to unemployment programs. SPILF funding helped cover meals for students, whose shifts run from 4 to 10 p.m.
Auction Rules

Silent Auction

Silent auction bidding opens at 6:30 PM and is located on the first and second floors of the Classroom Building, as well as the two classrooms in the Breezeway.

Bidders will record their bids on bid sheets in front of each item. Items will be awarded to one bidder only unless otherwise specified on the bid sheet instructions. Group bids must be paid in a single payment. If multiple names are listed in one group bid, the first name will be denoted winner and held accountable for payment.

The minimum bid and minimum raise for each item are shown on each bid sheet. To be valid, bids must comply with these minimums and be legible.

A written bid constitutes a legal contract to purchase that silent auction item at the price you stated if your bid is the winning bid. The highest valid bid entered prior to closing will be the winner. The Silent Auction will close at 8:30 PM. All bids must be recorded at that time in order to be considered.

Live Auction

Live auction bidding begins promptly at 8:45 PM in Paul Brest Hall.

When bidding, please raise your hand so that you may be identified by our auctioneer and ushers.

A bid acknowledged by the auctioneer is a legal contract to purchase the item. If a group is bidding on one item, please designate one person to place your combined bid. Auction items will be awarded to one purchaser only.

Payment

All Silent Auction and Live Auction items must be paid for by the end of the evening at the entrance to Paul Brest Hall. For your convenience, we gladly accept American Express, Visa, and MasterCard, but cash or check are strongly preferred.

Pickup

Once you have paid for your items, you will be issued a receipt. Please proceed to the east side of the Law Lounge and present this receipt to a SPILF representative to claim your tangible items and/or certificates for services. Items must be claimed by May 1 or they will be forfeited without refund.

Tax Information

This catalog lists the fair market value of each item. Any amount you pay in excess of that amount may be available to you as a charitable contribution for tax purposes. Please check with your tax advisor for specifics.
